Intimacy Redefined

EDENHOUSE, NELSON, NEW ZEALAND

CONSISTENTLY RATED BY top travel magazines as one of the best luxury lodges in New Zealand, and by home and garden magazines as one of the prettiest, Edenhouse was not meant to be a hotel at all. The brainchild of a former Australian finance honcho and his real estate and design-driven Kiwi wife, the main building and the cottage were built to serve as a home to live in and entertain guests when the couple decided to move to New Zealand from the UK. The set-up consists of two rooms in the main building, and a quaint cottage with one en suite bedroom and a first floor with three beds, ideal for kids. Guests arrive by helicopter from Nelson airport, and often go off for lunch on a chopper to one of the national parks where they can fine-dine atop a mountain. This is discreet, intimate luxury at its best—the kind Hollywood stars prefer, and often frequent.
